U. S. DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE
FARMERS' BULLETIN No. 1685

FUR LAWS FOR THE SEASON 1931-32

THE PURPOSE of this publication, the seventeenth annual summary of the fur laws by the Department of Agriculture, is to acquaint trappers, fur dealers, administrative officials, and others with the provisions of Federal and State laws relating to fur animals, and to stimulate action on the part of all concerned in maintaining adequate breeding stocks of the fur bearers. While it is primarily the province of the individual States to enact and enforce laws for the protection of fur animals, the Department of Agriculture, under the provisions of the act of May 25, 1900, known as the Lacey Act, has jurisdiction over the interstate shipment of the dead bodies or parts thereof of wild animals that have been killed or shipped in violation of State law. In administering this act it is the policy of the department to cooperate to the fullest extent with State game officials, organizations, and individuals with a view to advancing the common interests of the public and aiding in the conservation of the species.

STEADILY DECLINING FUR CATCH<sup>1</sup>

THE PRICES PAID for raw furs are largely influenced by financial conditions in other industries, and in times of depression this commodity is one of the first to register a decline and generally one of the last to recuperate. There is, however, no overproduction of raw furs and no large supply in storage. During the winter season of 1930-31 fewer peltries were taken in the United States than in the previous year. In fact, for the last five years there has been a steady decline not only in the catch but also in the number of skins reaching raw-fur receiving houses. This year, as never before, all concerned in the various phases of the fur industry have realized that the number of skins taken annually is steadily on the decline.

Of all the causes of smaller offerings of peltries on the fur market, the chief, of course, is overtrapping over many years in the face of reduced breeding areas. Other conditions detrimental to the fur bearers and to the trapping industry have naturally played their part, some with almost equally disastrous results. The floods of 1927 destroyed numbers of fur animals in the Mississippi Basin and the New England States. The extensive and severe drought of 1930 had a detrimental effect on all fur animals, but especially on those living in or about the water. Because of lower prices quoted for raw skins during the seasons 1929-30 and 1930-31, many trappers discontinued operations.

In the case of martens and fishers still another condition is responsible for rapid depletion. Investigations conducted by the Bureau of Biological Survey have demonstrated that martens normally breed in July and August and that the young are not born until eight and one-half to nine and one-half months later; and the indications are that the gestation period in fishers is even longer than in martens. These findings reveal the fact that the laws permit the trapping of both martens and fishers over many parts of their ranges when the females are carrying young, a condition along with others that threatens at least local extinction to these valuable species.

Federal and State conservation officials, fur tradesmen, and fur farmers generally recognize the fact that the wild-life resources are to be protected for the use of the people of the States, as well as for purely conservational ends. All should work out their problems together and present a united front in urging legislation for the conservation of fur animals. Cooperation in such conservation will become general only when all concerned with the utilization of the fur resources realize the importance of research preliminary to legislation on subjects vital to the fur industry.

It must continually be emphasized that conditions detrimental to the fur supply are made even more unfavorable when trappers ply their trade out of season, thereby not only lessening the annual catch but reducing some species below the point where commercial trapping is possible and profitable.

REVIEW OF LEGISLATION OF 1931

FEDERAL REGULATIONS FOR ALASKA

By amendment to regulations under the Alaska game law, the number of fur districts for the Territory is increased from three to eight. The boundaries are described in detail in the footnote under Alaska on page 6. Other changes effected by the amendment are a reduction from $250 to $100 in the fee charged nonresident fur dealers, fur corporations or copartnerships not organized under the laws of the Territory, and agents of nonresident buyers. The new regulations provide a sealing system for the skins of beavers and martens, whereby such skins must be presented to the Alaska Game Commission or an authorized agent for sealing within 90 days after the close of the season where taken, except in fur district 1, where they must be presented within 30 days. In all cases affidavits showing lawful taking must be presented in prescribed form. The possession and sale of unsealed beaver and marten skins is made unlawful after the allotted period.

Beaver.—The season on beaver was opened in parts of districts 1, 2, and 7, and throughout districts 4, 5, and 6. The season remains closed in districts 3 and 8; on Chichagof and Baranof Islands, in district 1; on the Kenai Peninsula south of Portage Creek eastward to the head of Portage Canal, in district 2; and in the drainage to Chandalar River, in district 7. A bag limit of 10 a season was prescribed in districts 1 and 7, and 15 a season in districts 2, 4, 5, and 6.

Marten.—Open seasons from December 16 to January 15 and from November 6 to February 20, respectively, were prescribed on marten in districts 1 and 7, the season remaining closed elsewhere in the Territory. A bag limit of 10 a season was provided for the open districts.

Other land fur animals.—Varying seasons were prescribed throughout the Territory on muskrat; mink; land otter; weasel (ermine); red, cross, silver, white, and blue foxes; and lynx. The details are set forth in Circular No. 8 of the Alaska Game Commission.

STATE LAWS

Regular sessions of the legislatures have been held in 44 of the States since last years farmers' bulletin on the fur laws (No. 1648) was published. In many of these States changes in the trapping laws were made by legislative enactment, and in others by commission order or regulation. The general trend of legislation or commission action was toward a liberalization of the trapping laws and regulations, and, in some States there was a noticeable reduction in the fees charged for licenses.

SEASONS

Bear.—Protection was afforded bears in Arizona south of the Gila River, and in Georgia the season was shortened, closing February 1 instead of February 28. Arkansas provided a split season of November 9 to 14 and December 20 to January 1.

Raccoon.—In Georgia the season on raccoon was shortened, to close February 1 instead of February 28. In parts of the Lower Peninsula of Michigan the season was extended 15 days, opening November 1 instead of November 16. Minnesota changed the season from the period October 20 to November 20 to the period November 1 to December 1. In North Dakota the season was shortened 69 days, opening November 15 instead of November 1 and closing February 15 instead of March 31. The general season was shortened 14 days in Pennsylvania, opening October 15 instead of November 1 and closing December 15 instead of January 15, while in 18 counties a 62-day season, from November 1 to January 1 was prescribed. In South Dakota, where raccoons were previously unprotected, an open season of three months, from November 1 to January 31 was provided, thus affording them protection throughout nine months of the year.

Marten and fisher.—Michigan continued indefinitely the closed season on marten and fisher, and the season was closed this year on these species in Washington.

Mink.—Georgia shortened the season on mink, closing February 1 instead of February 28. In North Dakota the season was shortened 69 days, from the period November 1 to March 31 to the period November 15 to February 15. The season was opened in Oklahoma December 1 to January 31.

Otter.—Kansas and Michigan retained the closed season on otters, while protection was removed from them in North Dakota and in 40 counties in Texas. Washington closed the season entirely, and protection was removed in one county in Wisconsin.

Skunk.—North Carolina removed protection from skunks, and North Dakota and Rhode Island shortened the season one month, opening November 1 instead of October 1 in the former and closing March 15 instead of April 15 in the latter. In South Dakota the season was shortened 76 days, and Wisconsin removed protection in one county.

Fox.—Kansas prescribed a season from November 16 to January 31 on foxes. North Carolina closed the season except in five counties, where it remains open throughout the year. North Dakota shortened the season 69 days as in the case of mink and raccoon. In Oklahoma foxes were declared game animals, and it was made unlawful wantonly to kill them. The pelts of foxes legally killed, or accidentally killed while being chased for sport, must be delivered to the clerk of the school district in which killed, and proceeds from sale of such pelt applied to the general fund of the district. Tennessee removed protection from foxes in 2 counties, and Vermont in 1 county, while the season was closed in 43 counties in Texas.

Beaver.—Seasons were opened on beaver in five States, Arkansas providing a split season of November 9 to 14 and December 20 to January 1. Kansas prescribed a season from November 16 to January 31, while in Michigan a 16-day season from December 5 to 20 was provided in 19 counties; previously the season was closed throughout the State. In Oregon protection was removed in four counties and part of another. Texas opened the season for one month west of the Pecos River and removed protection entirely in 40 counties east of the Pecos. In Georgia the season was shortened one month, closing February 1 instead of February 28.

Muskrat.—In Maine the season on muskrat was shortened 46 days in the 8 southern counties, and 16 days in the remainder of the State. The season in Nevada was extended 63 days to the period November 15 to March 15, conforming to the season on other fur animals. South Dakota shortened the season 17 days, opening January 15 instead of December 15 and closing March 15 instead of March 1. In Texas the season was extended 17 days in 1 county, while in Wisconsin the season was opened October 25 to April 1 in 2 additional counties, thus making that season apply in 7 counties.

Other fur animals.—In Kansas an open season of November 16 to January 31 was prescribed for civet and badger, while separate seasons were prescribed for badgers in Michigan north and south of township 16. The season on badgers was shortened 31 days and on weasel 69 days in North Dakota. Ring-tailed cats in Oregon were grouped in the season with other fur animals.

Miscellaneous.—Tennessee repealed a number of local laws relative to trapping, enacted local laws in 5 counties, and closed 2 counties to all trapping. In Texas one additional county was closed to all trapping.

LICENSES AND FEES

Residents.—Arizona abolished the fee charged residents for trapping licenses, but required that they procure the license. In Arkansas a resident using more than 12 traps must procure a $20 license; a resident over 18 years of age may use 12 or less traps under a resident hunting license, the fee for which is $1.10, while a resident under 18 years of age may use 12 or less traps without a license. Michigan increased the trapping license fee from $1.25 to $1.75, and the special muskrat trapping license from $1 to $2. In New York the license fee was increased from $1.25 to $2.25; Oregon increased the fee from $2 to $3, and South Dakota reduced the fee from $5 to $2. Tennessee prescribed that a resident hunting license must be procured to trap fur animals except in one county. West Virginia adopted a $3 state-wide trapping license, and a $1 license for county of residence and adjoining counties.

Nonresidents.—In Arkansas a nonresident trapping license, costing $50, was adopted, in lieu of the former $20 hunting license.

Fur buyers.—Resident: Illinois and Indiana prescribed a $10 license fee for resident fur buyers. In Iowa the fur-buyer or fur-dealer license was reduced from $25 to $10, and the bond required of the licensee was reduced from $2,000 to $500. Oregon prescribed a $10 license fee for fur dealers, with a $3 license for dealer's agent. Tennessee, Vermont, and Washington adopted licenses of $20, $2, and $10 respectively. Nonresident: In Illinois, Indiana, New Jersey, and Vermont nonresident buyers are assessed $50. North Dakota reduced the fee from $50 to $25.

Fur farmers or breeders.—Idaho adopted a fur-farm permit or license, prescribing fixed fees for each species to be raised. Applicant is required to deposit $100 to cover expenses incident to inspection and examination of premises, any balance remaining being returned to him. Upon issuance of permit, the permittee becomes the owner of any fur animals then on the premises.

In Maine the fee for fur breeder's permit was reduced from $20 to $10. New York reduced from $10 to $1 the cost of license to breed and possess ferrets. Oregon adopted a provision requiring the tagging of the skins of all animals raised in captivity.

BAG LIMITS

Arizona prescribed a seasonal limit of 1 bear and 2 beavers; New Hampshire a seasonal limit of 20 raccoons; and Pennsylvania fixed the limit on raccoon at 3 a day, 10 a season.

BOUNTIES

Kansas rescinded the bounty on wolves, increased it on coyotes from $1 to $2, and authorized county commissioners to pay 10 cents each on jack rabbits. In Maine the bounty on bobcats and Canada lynxes was increased from $10 to $20. Wisconsin increased from $1 to $10 the bounty on wolf cubs taken between March 1 and November 1. Maryland discontinued the bounty on hawks, and Missouri placed a bounty of 50 cents on eagles.

SUMMARY OF LAWS

In stating the open seasons in the following summary, the plan is followed, as in the bulletin on the game laws,<sup>2</sup> of including the first and last days thereof. Statements regarding trapping on lands of another do not take into consideration the general trespass laws. The statements relative to bounty laws include, for convenience, all mammals and birds on which bounties are paid.

FEDERAL LAWS

Two Federal laws have a bearing on the fur industry of the United States—the Lacey Act, governing interstate commerce in wild animals, and the tariff act of June 17, 1930.

The Lacey Act (U. S. Code, title 18, sec. 392) provides that it shall be unlawful to deliver to a common carrier for transportation, or for any common carrier to transport, from any State, Territory, or District of the United States, to any other State, Territory, or District thereof, the bodies or parts thereof of any wild animals killed or shipped in violation of the law of the State, Territory, or District in which killed or from which shipped.

The tariff act of June 17, 1930, places a duty of 15 per cent ad valorem on all live wild animals shipped into the United States, including silver and black foxes and rabbits. (Par. 715.) The skins of foxes, dressed or undressed, and manufactures thereof, are dutiable at 50 per cent ad valorem. Other raw furs and skins are admitted free of duty. Furs dressed on the skin (except silver and black foxes) and not further advanced than dyeing are dutiable at 25 per cent ad valorem. Manufactures of fur (except silver or black fox) further advanced than dressing, prepared for use as material, if not dyed, are dutiable at 35 per cent ad valorem, and if dyed, at 40 per cent ad valorem. (Par. 1519.) All animals imported for breeding purposes, other than silver and black foxes, are admitted free of duty when of pure breeds and registered in a book of record recognized by the Secretary of Agriculture. Since such recognition has not been given foxes, rabbits, and other fur bearers, importers of these animals do not benefit by the duty-free provisions of the tariff act. (Par. 1606.)

LAWS OF STATES

ALABAMA

 Beaver, otter, bear, raccoon, fox, opossum, mink, muskrat (trapping)..... Nov. 1-Feb. 29
Prohibited methods: Unlawful to set traps in a manner dangerous to domestic stock. Use of steel traps prohibited in Choctaw, Coffee, Crenshaw, Dallas, and Perry Counties.
Licenses: Fee, $15 for first trap and $2.50 for each additional trap; issued by probate judges. Landowners or landlords, and members of families may trap on own land during open season without license. Written permission required to trap on land of another.

Possession and sale: Possession of young of protected fur animals prohibited during close season. No restrictions on skins legally taken.

Shipment and export: No restrictions on skins legally taken.

Propagation: Under special permit from commissioner of game and fisheries, fur animals may be captured or possessed for propagation.

Bounties: None paid.

ALASKA<sup>4</sup>

 Beaver:
 In fur district 1 (see exception)..... Dec. 16-Jan. 15.
Exception: On Chichagof and Baranof Islands..... No open season.

<sup>1</sup>Alabama: Owner may protect premises in any manner at any time from depredations of fur animals. Fur animals may be hunted with dog or gun: Sept. 1-Feb. 29.

<sup>4</sup>Alaska: Regulations under Alaska game law of Jan. 13, 1925, relating to land fur animals may be obtained upon application to Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C., or to Alaska Game Commission, Juneau, Alaska. For special information regarding sea otters and fur-seal fisheries and Afognak Reservation, which are subject to special legislative and administrative control, application should be made to Commissioner of Fisheries, Washington, D. C. For law and regulations governing leasing of public lands in Alaska for fur-farming purposes, application should be made to Commissioner, General Land Office, Washington, D. C. Following are the fur districts specified by the regulations:

Fur district 1.—All of southeastern Alaska from Dixon Entrance to Cape Fairweather and along longitude 138° to the international boundary.

Fur district 2.—That portion of southern Alaska draining to the Gulf of Alaska and Cook Inlet, beginning at western boundary of Fur District 1 and following longitude 138° from Cape Fairweather to the international boundary and along this boundary to Mount St. Elias; thence following summit of Chugach Range to Miles Glacier; thence down the center line of said glacier to the center of the Copper River & Northwestern Railway bridge across the Copper River at mile 49; thence up the center line of Childs Glacier to its summit; thence

 Beaver—Continued.
 In district 2 (see exception)..... Jan. 1-Feb. 29.
Exception: On Kenai Peninsula south of north bank of Portage Creek eastward to head of Portage Canal..... No open season.
 In districts 3 and 8..... No open season.
 In districts 4, 5, 6, and 7 (see exception)..... Jan. 1-Mar. 31.
Exception: In drainage area to Chandalar River in district 7..... No open season.

along the divide through Marshall Pass and Thompson Pass to Tahnetta Pass; thence along the divide separating the waters of the Matanuska River from the Nelchina River and the Talkeetna River from the Oshetna River; thence along the divide separating the waters of the Oshetna River from Kosina Creek to and across the Susitna River at a point 4 miles northwest of the mouth of Goose Creek; thence along the divide separating the waters flowing northwest into the Susitna River from those flowing southerly into the Susitna River; thence following said divide separating the waters flowing north into the Nenana River from those flowing southerly into the Susitna and Chulitna Rivers and across Broad Pass and the Alaska Railroad at mile 308; thence along the divide separating the waters flowing south into the Chulitna River from those flowing north into Cantwell Creek and the Nenana River to the summit of the Alaska Range; thence along said summit through Rainy Pass to Merrill Pass; thence along the summit of the Chigmit Mountains, separating the waters flowing easterly into Cook Inlet from those flowing westerly into the Kuskokwim River and Bristol Bay, to its intersection with the old portage from Kamishak Bay to Kakhonak Bay on Iliamna Lake; thence along said portage to Kamishak Bay.

Fur district 3.—Consisting of the Aleutian Islands, Unimak Island, Amak Island, all the islands lying south of the Alaska Peninsula, the Kodiak Afognak Islands group, the Barren Islands, Augustine Island, and the Alaska Peninsula from False Pass to the mouth of Reindeer Creek, thence following said creek and a line to the center of Aniachchak Crater, and including that portion of said peninsula consisting of the drainage to the Pacific Ocean south of a line following the divide from the center of Aniachchak Crater to the old portage from Kamishak Bay to Kakhonak Bay; thence along said portage on the boundary of fur district 2 to Kamishak Bay.

Fur district 4.—All the drainage to Bristol Bay, bounded on the south by the northern boundary of fur district 3, on the east by the western boundary of fur district 2, and on the north by a line beginning at Cape Newenham and extending along the summit of the divide separating the waters flowing northerly into Kuskokwim Bay and Kuskokwim River from those flowing southerly into Bristol Bay, to its intersection with the western boundary of fur district 2 at a point approximately 22 miles south of Merrill Pass.

Marten:
In district 1.....	Dec. 16-Jan. 15.
In districts 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, and 8.	No open season.
In district 7.....	Nov. 6-Feb. 20.

Wolf, coyote, wolverene, black bear, marmot, ground squirrel (throughout Territory), and polar bear in districts 5 and 8.....	No close season.

Prohibited methods:<sup>1,2</sup> Unlawful to take or kill land fur animals with poison, by use of trap or device known as the "krips," steel bear trap, or any other trap with jaws having a spread exceeding 9 inches, by aid or use of a shotgun, fire, jacklight, pit lamp, searchlight, or other artificial light, or (except polar bear and, in districts 2 and 3, wolves and coyotes), by aid of a dog. No fur animal may be taken from its home or den by digging, smoking, or use of chemicals, and no home, house, den, or runway of a beaver or muskrat may be injured or destroyed. Traps may not be set within 25 feet of beaver house, or den, nor may beavers be taken with firearms.

Bag limits: Beaver, 10 a season in districts 1 and 7; 15 a season in districts 2, 4, 5, and 6. Marten, 10 a season in districts 1 and 7.

Licenses: Trapping: Nonresident, $50 (nonresident hunting large brown or grizzly bears must have registered guide); resident, $2 (not required of native-born Indians, Eskimos, or half-breeds who have not exercised right of franchise or severed their tribal relations). Alien, $100 (special license, issued by members of commission). Fur farm, $2. Fur dealer: Resident, $10. Nonresident citizen, or corporation, association, or copartnership organized under laws of Territory, or a State of United States, $100.
